Auto-Owners Personal Property Replacement Cost Coverage Endorsement

If the contents of your home were stolen or destroyed, do you know what your home insurance would pay for your insured loss?

A standard homeowners policy would pay for the actual value of your contents at the time of loss. The settlement of your claim would be based on the depreciated value of your personal property rather than the cost to replace “old with new.”

There is a way to improve your homeowners protection and make sure your loss of personal property is insured at today's replacement cost rather than on a depreciated value basis: our Personal Property Replacement Cost Coverage Endorsement. This additional protection provides replacement cost coverage on your personal property (furniture, clothing, appliances, TV, stereo, etc.) if it is stolen or destroyed by an insured peril.

For example, say you bought a new TV costing $500 five years ago and today's replacement cost is $650. If, during the past five years, it has depreciated 10% per year, the depreciated value would be $325. With Auto-Owners Personal Property Replacement Cost Endorsement, we would replace the TV for $650 because this coverage replaces old property at today's prices.

Interested in adding Personal Property Replacement Cost Coverage to your policy?

Call your independent agency representing Auto-Owners for further information, prices, and a full explanation of coverage.
